VISUAL ARTIST STEVEN COGLE NEW PAINTING EXHIBITION
BLOOD, SWEAT & PAINT
THURSDAY, DECEMBER 10TH, 2015 AT
ONE ART SPACE, NEW YORK CITY

New York City-based visual artist, Steven Cogle presents a new body of work on December 10th with an exclusive pop-up solo show and reception on Thursday, December 10th, 2015 from 6pm-9pm – at One Art Space.

Coming off the tailwinds of a successful solo exhibit at House of Art gallery (My Art Looks Back, Less I Forget), Cogle continues to work tirelessly in the studio in preparation for his stunning presentation: Blood, Sweat & Paint, at One Art Space in TriBeCa. The vast space is a perfect location to exhibit Cogle's signature large-scale pieces. Portraying lots of emotion, movement and color, Cogle's neo-expressionistic works thematically range from the influential sports figures of his childhood to recollections of time he spent in the US Military. The self-taught, Brooklyn-born artist tells a complex story with each piece, painting his own history, along with that of the African Diaspora, world history and beyond, into socio-political commentary.

Please join Steven Cogle and friends for pop-up show and reception for Blood, Sweat & Paint on Thursday, December 10th, 2015 from 6pm-9pm at One Art Space: 23 Warren Street, New York, NY 10007, www.oneartspace.com.
